

Fumez the Engineer returns to The Rosedale Hewens Academy Trust

Specialising in music production and mastering, and having developed a stellar reputation as a sound engineer, Fumez The Engineer returned to The Rosedale Hewens Academy Trust on Thursday 21st April for an exclusive interview as well as a Question and Answer with students at Parkside Studio College and Rosedale College.

Upon arrival at Parkside Studio College, Fumez and his entourage were guided through the College's facilities equipped with industry standard resources, from its fully functioning salon, state-of-the-art training kitchen inspired by some of the world's top restaurants and a media suite designed to equip young people with the experience required to thrive in the ever-changing media industry. In a purpose-built Media and Radio suite, the College's ambassadors delved into a real-life radio broadcasting experience, exploring the realms of new media by interviewing the eminent Fumez at Parkside's Hayes FM Radio Station. It was a surreal feeling for our students who asked riveting questions and received insights into the luminary's source of inspiration, modelling an authentic exclusive radio interview.

Becoming one of the most prominent figures in the drill scene today through perseverance, pioneering figure, Fumez, marked his achievements by giving back to young people. From inspiring talented young people in industry to cultivating the attitudes and skills needed in the next generation of talent, he urged students to allow their lifelong passions to fuel their ambitions. He kept them apprised of the importance of prioritisation, immersing oneself wholly in their goals, and going beyond the linear narrative in pursuit of their dreams.
